These are the key steps agencies must follow to dispute a Real-time Billing (RtB) charge or to request a change. For unique disputes involving lack of detail, service quality, multi-agency impacts, or division coding changes, consult the Real-time Billing Dispute Procedure for more information.

Step 1: Identify and Notify

If an agency identifies a needed correction, it must first notify its assigned IT Director to determine if an official dispute should be submitted.

Step 2: Access the Dispute Form

If a dispute is deemed necessary, the agency Subject Matter Expert (SME) must log in to the OIT Real-time Billing (RtB) website and click the "Dispute Charges" button located on any of the Detailed Dashboards to access the dispute form.

Step 3: Submit the Dispute Form

The agency SME must complete the official dispute form, clearly detailing the specific services that need changes and providing the rationale for the correction.

Step 4: Adhere to Submission Timelines

Agencies must ensure disputes are submitted timely — closed previous fiscal years cannot be corrected. The dispute submission timelines are as follows:

Fiscal Year Period	Submission Deadline	Important Notes
Periods 1 – 7	Within 90 days of invoice issuance	Requests submitted after the 90 day window will not be processed.
Periods 8 – 10	By June 30	Overrides the 90 day rule to meet year-end deadlines. Dispute and change requests submitted after June 30 will not be processed.
Period 11	By July 7	Overrides the 90 day rule to meet year-end deadlines. Dispute and change requests submitted after July 7 will not be processed.
Period 12	By July 22	Dispute and change requests will be reviewed for Period 12 charges only and will not be processed if submitted after July 22.

Step 5: Track Dispute Status

Once the dispute form is submitted, the OIT Budget team will process the request and notify the appropriate service owner for review. Agencies can track the status of their submitted dispute on the Billing Adjustments dashboard on the RtB website.
